Contract Duration

Variable length

For rostering purposes. [A roster of suitable candidates may be established for this particular profile as a result of this selection process for both fixed-term established and general temporary assistance posts.]

Duties & Responsibilities

Field Interpreters work for the Court Interpretation and Translation Section of the Registry and/or the Language Services Unit of the Office of the Prosecutor. The successful candidates will be expected to: (a) provide consecutive interpretation on mission; (b) prepare thoroughly for the above assignments; (c) observe established terminology and in-house usage, and identify new terminology; (d) carry out basic translation duties whilst on mission, where necessary; (e) take part in refresher training sessions with a view to refining his/her interpreting skills; and (f) perform other language services as required by the heads of the two language services of the Court.

Essential Qualifications

QUALIFICATIONS AND EXPERIENCE

Successful candidates must: (a) possess the ability to work as part of a team; (b) demonstrate flexibility, initiative and willingness to learn new skills; (c) possess a knowledge of relevant computer software including word-processing programs; and (d) be available, at times, on short notice; and would preferably though not necessarily: (a) possess a degree in interpretation, translation, linguistics or law or in any other relevant subject matter; and (b) have relevant experience in interpretation on a formal basis, preferably in an international organisation.

KNOWLEDGE OF LANGUAGES

An excellent level of spoken Jula(*) and excellent English and/or French are required. A working knowledge of one of the other official languages of the Court is desirable. Short-listed candidates will be invited to take the ICC accreditation test which consists essentially of an interview and an interpretation test. Accreditation is, however, subject to obtaining security and medical clearance. Successful candidates will then be placed on a roster, although they should bear in mind that their deployment will depend on their suitability for a particular mission based on their personal profile and the objectives of the said mission. If suitable for deployment, Field Interpreters will then be contracted on a freelance basis for the mission.
