Trial Chamber I (“Chamber”) of the International Criminal Court, in the case of The Prosecutor v. Laurent Gbagbo and Charles Blé Goudé, having regard to Articles 60, 61(11) and 64(6)(a) of the Rome Statute (“Statute”) and Rules 118 and 119 of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence (“Rules”) issues this decision requesting new submissions from the parties and participants for purposes of Article 60(3) of the Statute.

1. On 10 March 2017, the Chamber, by majority, Judge Tarfusser dissenting, issued its last decision under Article 60(3) of the Statute in which it held that Laurent Gbagbo shall remain in detention.¹
2. On 19 July 2017, the Appeals Chamber reversed this decision and remitted the matter to the Chamber for a new review of the ruling on Laurent Gbagbo’s detention, under article 60(3) of the Statute, “addressing all relevant factors” and bearing in mind the Appeals Chamber’s guidance as to the law set out in the judgment.² The Appeals Chamber also indicated that “[p]rior to rendering its new decision, the Trial Chamber should decide as to whether the parties should be given the opportunity to file new submissions”.³
3. In light of the above, and in order to have all relevant information for it to be able to conduct a new review of the ruling on Laurent Gbagbo’s detention, the Chamber considers it appropriate to receive new submissions from the parties and participants for the purpose of Article 60(3) of the Statute, in particular considering the factors addressed by the Appeals Chamber.
