The Office of the Prosecutor is one of the four organs of the International Criminal Court (ICC). It is headed by the Prosecutor, Karim A. A. Khan QC, who was elected by the Assembly of States Parties. The Prosecutor has full authority over the management and administration of the Office, including its staff, facilities and other resources. The Prosecutor took office on 16 June 2021 and succeeds Ms Fatou Bensouda, who was the Court’s second Prosecutor.

The mandate of the Office is to receive and analyse referrals and communications in order to determine whether there is a reasonable basis to investigate; to conduct investigations into genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes; and to conduct prosecutions before the Court of persons responsible for such crimes.

By conducting preliminary examinations, investigations and prosecutions, the Office contributes to the overall objective of the Court — to help end impunity for the perpetrators of the most serious crimes of concern to the international community as a whole, and thus to contribute to the prevention of such crimes.

As a consequence of its mandate, the Office of the Prosecutor comprises three divisions:

- The Investigation Division is responsible for the conduct of investigations (such as collecting and examining evidence, questioning persons being investigated as well as victims and witnesses). In this respect, the Statute requires the Office to extend the investigation to cover both incriminating and exonerating facts in order to establish the truth.

- The Prosecution Division has a role in the investigative process, and will have principal responsibility for the litigation of proceedings before the various Chambers of the Court.

- The Jurisdiction, Complementarity and Cooperation Division analyses referrals and communications, with support from the Investigation Division, assess admissibility, helps secure the cooperation needed for the activities of the Office and is responsible for all external relations aspects of the Office.

The Prosecutor may independently start an investigation upon referral of a situation by a State Party, or the Security Council acting to address a threat to international peace and security. In addition, the Prosecutor, under his proprio motu powers, may start an investigation on the territory or against nationals of a State Party, subject to confirmation by a Pre-Trial Chamber of the Court.

It is the policy of the Office of the Prosecutor that investigations focus on those individuals who bear the greatest criminal responsibility for crimes committed in a situation under investigation. The Preamble of the Rome Statute recognises that the Court itself is but a last resort for bringing justice to the victims of genocide, war crimes, and crimes against humanity. Thus, the Rome Statute assigns the Court and the Office of the Prosecutor a role that is complementary to national systems.

The Rome Statute also provides that the Office of the Prosecutor shall act independently. Consequently, a member of the Office of the Prosecutor must not seek or act on instructions from any external source, such as States, international organisations, NGOs or individuals.
