

INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL COURT AT 20

Reflections on the Past,
Present and the Future

David Donat Cattin

Secretary-General, Parliamentarians for Global Action

David Donat Cattin is Secretary-General of Parliamentarians for Global Action (PGA) and Adjunct Professor of International Law at Center for Global Affairs of New York University (NYU); worked on the ratification and implementation of the Rome Statute and its amendments in more than 100 States (1999 to present); headed the NGOs' team on the trial, appeals and review at the Rome Diplomatic Conference on the ICC (1998) and drafted in 1996-97 the non-paper that constituted the basis for the inclusion of victims' participation in the ICC proceedings (which resulted in Art. 68.3, Rome Statute).

He produced several commentaries, essays and contributions on critical topics of International Criminal Law, International Humanitarian Law and Human Rights, including the Commentaries on the Rome Statute edited by Triffterer and Ambos, and (Giorgio) Lattanzi and Monetti, as well as the volumes on the draft Statute and Rome Statute by (Flavia) Lattanzi and Schabas. He co-authored the volume "International Law and the Protection of Humanity" (Brill, 2017). He contributed to several public hearings and conferences on international justice in national and regional Parliaments, international organizations (including the EU, the OAS and the UN), academic institutions and civil society frameworks.
