Trial Chamber I ('Chamber') of the International Criminal Court, in the case of The Prosecutor v. Laurent Gbagbo and Charles Blé Goudé, having regard to Articles 21, 64 and 67, of the Rome Statute ('Statute'), Rules 113 and 135 of the Rules of Procedure and Evidence ('Rules'), and Regulation 103 of the Regulations of the Court, issues the following 'Decision on the fitness of Laurent Gbagbo to stand trial'.

I. Classification

1. Due to the private nature of the matters discussed in relation to this litigation, numerous filings within the record have been classified as confidential. The Chamber issues this decision publicly, and in due course, will issue an order setting a timetable for the parties and participants to file public redacted versions of their related filings.

II. Procedural History

2. On 2 November 2012, Pre-Trial Chamber I ('Pre-Trial Chamber') ruled on the motion filed by the defence team for Mr Gbagbo ('Gbagbo Defence')¹ challenging, inter alia, his fitness to take part in the confirmation proceedings ('First Decision on Fitness').² In this First Decision on Fitness, the Pre-Trial Chamber found that Mr Gbagbo was physically and mentally fit to attend the proceedings, but determined that his health required heightened attention.³
3. Between 2013 and 2015, upon instruction from the Pre-Trial Chamber,⁴ the Registry and the Defence filed a total of nine joint reports on the progress of

⁷ Order convening an ex parte status conference on 16 June 2015, ICC-02/11-01/15-57. In preparation for the status conference, the Registry filed in the record of the case a 'general statement' by the Detention Centre Medical Officer, whereby the latter indicated that 'from a medical point of view, there [was] currently no

5. During the course of the status conference held on 16 June 2015, the Gbagbo Defence submitted that, inter alia, the ‘proper participation’ of Mr Gbagbo during trial proceedings was not possible, and that his presence at trial, even with facilitating measures, ‘would lead to physical [...] and [...] nervous exhaustion or a breakdown’.⁸ The Defence argued that, absent any treatment for his illnesses, Mr Gbagbo ‘has not been healed’ and, because of his inability to concentrate, intimated that he was ‘unable to take part in any kind of activity’.⁹
6. On 19 June 2015, the Prosecution filed a motion requesting that the Chamber order a medical and psychiatric examination of Mr Gbagbo, pursuant to Rule 135 of the Rules, ‘to confirm that [he] is fit to attend the trial proceedings’.¹⁰ The Prosecution submitted that, to the best of its knowledge, Mr Gbagbo had not been treated and understood, based on the discussion at the status conference, that ‘the Defence [did] not consider [its] client to be fit to stand trial’.¹¹
7. On 13 July 2015, the Defence filed a response opposing the Prosecution’s request for a medical examination of Mr Gbagbo,¹² contending that the Chamber may only decide whether or not Mr Gbagbo is able to face trial after he has been treated. In the alternative, the Defence requested that the Chamber defer its order on the medical examination, obtain Mr Gbagbo’s consent, and objection to Mr Gbagbo attending court proceedings, provided he has the opportunity to rest in between court sessions’. The Medical Officer further stated that it was not possible to make a prediction about Mr Gbagbo’s ability to attend court proceedings later this year. Updated Information on Mr Gbagbo’s Health Related Needs Pursuant to The Chamber’s Order of 6 May 2015, 28 May 2015, ICC-02/11-01/15-84-Conf-Exp with an ex parte annex. A confidential ex parte redacted version, available to the Prosecution, was filed on the same day (ICC-02/11-01/15-84-Conf-Exp-Red).

invite supplemental submissions by the parties to set out the appropriate procedure.¹³

8. On 7 September 2015, the Chamber issued its 'Decision granting in part the Prosecution request for an examination of Mr Gbagbo pursuant to Rule 135 of the Rules and instructing the parties to file supplemental submissions concerning the selection of expert(s)'.¹⁴ In this decision, the Chamber found it 'timely to conduct a medical examination of Mr Gbagbo under Rule 135 of the Rules' in order to facilitate the adjudication of any issue as to Mr Gbagbo's fitness to stand trial, as well as any practical modalities needed to facilitate his attendance at trial.¹⁵
9. On 30 September 2015, having received parties' supplemental submissions on the type of expertise warranted and the experts they considered best placed to conduct the examination,¹⁶ the Chamber issued an 'Order to conduct an examination of Mr Gbagbo under Rule 135 of the Rules' appointing Dr Pierre Lamothe, Mr Alain Dumez and Dr Bertrand Ludes ('Appointed Experts') for this purpose.¹⁷ The Chamber also ordered the Gbagbo Defence to seek Mr Gbagbo's consent in providing the Appointed Experts with Mr Gbagbo's medical and detention records or to provide his views by 2 October 2015,¹⁸ and once the Appointed Experts' reports were notified, to propose confidential, redacted versions of them for transmission to the parties and participants.¹⁹ In the same order, the Chamber convened a hearing to be held in private session on 5 November 2015, in order to give the Gbagbo Defence, Prosecution and Registry an opportunity to submit any observations on the Appointed Experts' reports prior to trial.²⁰ The Gbagbo Defence subsequently requested leave to appeal this order,²¹ which was opposed by the Prosecution²² and was rejected in an oral decision by the Chamber on 10 November 2015.²³

10. On 27 October 2015, Gbagbo Defence filed a request that the Chamber order the attendance of the Appointed Experts at the hearing, in order to provide the parties an opportunity to question the experts.²⁴ On 28 October 2015, the Prosecution filed its response to this request.²⁵ On the same day, the Chamber granted the request, considering that allowing the Appointed Experts to be questioned would further facilitate the adjudication of any issues which may arise therefrom.²⁶ To accommodate this request, the Chamber re-scheduled the hearing which had been convened for 5 November 2015 to 10-12 November 2015 to allow enough time for the Appointed Experts to be questioned ('Fitness Hearing'). In so doing, the Chamber re-scheduled opening statements to coincide with the commencement of the presentation of evidence by the Prosecution to 28-29 January 2016.²⁷ The Gbagbo Defence subsequently

15. On 6 November 2015, the Single Judge answered each of the Gbagbo Defence's requests concerning the conduct of the hearing via email, indicating that reasons for his decision would be given at the start of the Fitness Hearing.⁴⁶
16. Also on 6 November 2015, the Chamber received a request from Mr Gbagbo requesting leave not to attend the Fitness Hearing.⁴⁷ The Chamber granted the request in respect of the session to be held on 10 November 2015, but rejected it for the sessions to be held on 12 and 19 November 2015.⁴⁸
17. On 10 November 2015, the Chamber rendered a number of oral decisions⁴⁹ and set out the framework for the conduct of the Fitness Hearing.⁵⁰ Due to the availability of the experts, the Single Judge also re-scheduled the Fitness Hearing for 10, 12, and 19 November 2015.⁵¹
18. On 12 November 2015, Dr Lamothe and Dr Ludes testified.⁵² On 19 November 2015, the Chamber heard testimony from Dr Dumez,⁵³ and received the parties' submissions.⁵⁴

III. Summary of the Appointed Experts' qualifications and main findings

19. In the section below, the Chamber briefly summarises the Appointed Experts' qualifications and the central conclusions they reached in their reports and provided in their testimony.
20. Dr Lamothe is a psychiatrist, a forensic doctor and an expert certified by the French Court the Cassation.⁵⁵ During his career, he was in charge of creating and leading a number of penitentiary institutions.⁵⁶ Dr Lamothe is also a teacher of criminology and medical expertise⁵⁷ and has testified previously in several countries including Switzerland, Belgium, the United States of America and France, by his submission, has testified as an expert in too many trials to enumerate.⁵⁸ In his report, Dr Lamothe concluded that he observed 'no significant impairment of [Mr Gbagbo's] cognitive abilities or executive functions',⁵⁹ that Mr Gbagbo is 'no longer suffering from clinical post-traumatic stress syndrome',⁶⁰ that he displays 'no positive signs of hospitalisation syndrome'.⁶¹ He also concluded that, in his opinion, Mr Gbagbo 'displays a satisfactory capacity to understand and defend himself against the charges, including the capacity to understand the purpose and the consequences'⁶² of the charges, 'is able to understand the course of the proceedings, including the nature and significance of pleading to the charges'⁶³, is 'able to understand the evidence presented by the Court', 'able to testify or give [an] unsworn statement (should he so choose)' and 'able to instruct counsel in the preparation and conduct of his defence'.⁶⁴ Notably, Dr Lamothe also reported that Mr Gbagbo's 'current state of health appears to have improved since [2012]'.⁶⁵ During questioning by counsel, Dr Lamothe reiterated that he stands by his findings.⁶⁶

21. Dr Ludes is a forensics expert, forensics teacher at Paris V University, head of a forensics institute in Paris, and is an accredited expert with the Cour de Cassation and the Appellate Administrative Court in Nancy.⁶⁷ He has previously testified many times before several different courts.⁶⁸ In his expert report, Dr Ludes concluded that 'on the whole' his examination 'revealed nothing clinical to prevent Mr Laurent Gbagbo from attending trial' and that 'there was no impairment of [Mr Gbagbo's] cognitive functions reducing his capacity to understand and reason or likely to obstruct his comprehension or ability to react with respect to the course of proceedings against him'.⁶⁹ He indicated that Mr Gbagbo formulated a number of complaints, which were assessed during his physical examination.⁷⁰ Concerning this, Dr Ludes concluded that Mr Gbagbo was in 'good condition' and, 'subject to appropriate monitoring [...], the medical care and treatment described to me seem appropriate'.⁷¹ During questioning by counsel, Dr Ludes stated repeatedly that he stood by the findings in his report,⁷² that he did not see anything that would prevent Laurent Gbagbo from participating in the trial,⁷³ but that he recommended regular breaks and rest for Mr Gbagbo during trial and monitoring of his condition.⁷⁴

22. Mr Dumez is a clinical psychologist and specialises in forensic psychology.⁷⁵ He is an expert approved by the Cour de Cassation,⁷⁶ has been working as a psychologist in hospital psychiatric units for 35 years,⁷⁷ and is the head of the French National Association of Forensic Psychologists.⁷⁸ He also has a psychotherapy practice and works with victims.⁷⁹ He has provided expert services in various areas and has generally provided more than 4,000 expert reports relating to forensic psychology.⁸⁰ In his report, Mr Dumez concluded that 'Mr Gbagbo possesses psychological resources that allow him not only to understand the proceedings brought against him and the elements of the charges to which he must respond but also to put forward, in an appropriate manner, his subjective position by participating actively in his trial'.⁸¹ Notably, he indicated that the 'psychological examination of [Mr Gbagbo] showed a significant improvement in his mental health, with a clear decrease in the intensity of his [psycho-traumatic] symptoms'.⁸² He found that Mr Gbagbo's memory corresponded perfectly to his age, and that the interview demonstrated 'a correct understanding of the mechanisms of the proceedings that he must undergo'.⁸³ He noted, however, Mr Gbagbo's propensity for fatigue, due partly to his age and the lack of social stimuli of being in a detention setting, but concluded that sessions of 1.5 hours, preferably in the afternoon, would be conducive to effective participation.⁸⁴

IV. Submissions of the parties and participants

A. Prosecution

23. Relying on the jurisprudence of other international tribunals,⁸⁵ the Prosecution submits that the applicable standard in assessing an accused's fitness is one of 'meaningful participation, which allows the accused to exercise his fair trial rights to such a degree that he is able to participate effectively in his trial, and has an understanding of the essentials of the proceedings.'⁸⁶ In its view, the Accused need only understand the general thrust of the proceedings,⁸⁷ and therefore submits that Laurent Gbagbo does not need to possess the legal and strategic capabilities of a lawyer, as he can avail himself of his lawyers' expertise.⁸⁸ The Prosecution further submits that the expected length and breadth of trial would not form a sufficient basis to find that Mr Gbagbo is unfit to stand trial.⁸⁹

24. In the view of the Prosecution, the Appointed Expert's provide a clear view of Mr Gbagbo's health.⁹⁰ In its view, and based on the three Expert Reports and the Appointed Experts' testimony, Mr Gbagbo's cognitive and physical capacities are at such a level that it is possible for him to exercise his fair trial rights.⁹¹

25. The Prosecution submits, however, that the real issue is that of modalities of Mr Gbagbo's attendance at trial.⁹² In this regard, the Prosecution proposes that accommodations should be made to reflect Mr Gbagbo's physical condition, such as allowing breaks over the course of the day, but it suggests that hearings held throughout the day, in 1.5 hour sessions, would be suitable.⁹³ The Prosecution also proposes that the Chamber direct the Registry to communicate the results of continued medical monitoring conducted as a part of Mr Gbagbo's care in the detention centre.⁹⁴

B. Legal Representative of Victims

26. The LRV firstly points to the 'unequivocal' conclusions of the Appointed Experts that Mr Gbagbo is fit to stand trial and take part in the proceedings.⁹⁵ Referring to jurisprudence from the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia ('ICTY'),⁹⁶ she submits that the Accused's capacity must be viewed in a 'reasonable and [common sense] manner' and that each capacity need not be at its 'notionally highest level'.⁹⁷ In the view of the LRV, '[n]othing in the medical report suggests that Mr Gbagbo is unable to understand the essentials of the proceedings and to provide instruction to his lawyer'.⁹⁸ In relation to the Defence's submission that the trial could trigger a breakdown, the LRV submits that Mr Dumez gave no such indication and that the possibility of deterioration is 'speculative in nature' and should not be taken into account.⁹⁹

27. The LRV submits that the health of Mr Gbagbo is a concern about which the victims are keenly aware, is something frequently addressed by the media in Côte d'Ivoire, and something that they believe could have a detrimental effect on the proceedings.¹⁰⁰ The victims have expressed a shared desire for an expeditious trial and have indicated their willingness to concede to Mr Gbagbo certain necessary arrangements if this will avoid the trial being suspended.¹⁰¹

C. Gbagbo Defence

28. The Defence, relying on previous medical reports submitted in 2012 and 2014, and the three Expert Reports, submits that Mr Gbagbo is 'sick', 'tired' and 'fragile', and therefore, unfit to stand trial.¹⁰² The Defence further submits that the members of the defence team have also witnessed Mr Gbagbo's exhaustion and weakness on a daily basis.¹⁰³ Pointing to the recent report of Mr Dumez, the Defence recalls that Mr Gbagbo's pathologies have not disappeared.¹⁰⁴
29. As to the Expert Reports, the Gbagbo Defence submits that Dr Ludes and Dr Lamothe lacked professionalism in the way they conducted their examinations.¹⁰⁵ The Defence refers to certain insufficiencies in respect of their examinations, a lack of understanding as to the remit of the Appointed Experts' duties, lack of preparation and lack of acknowledgment of the findings from previous expert reports.¹⁰⁶ The Gbagbo Defence further submits that the Chamber should not attach any weight in particular to the 'two physicians' reports due to their lack of understanding of proceedings at the Court and Mr Gbagbo's role in these proceedings.¹⁰⁷
30. Moreover, the Defence submits that because of Mr Gbagbo's age and other physical medical conditions, he is currently at risk.¹⁰⁸ Elaborating on these risks, the Defence submits that further medical examinations must be conducted and a physician should be appointed to afford the Chamber a better understanding of the real risk to the health of the Accused.¹⁰⁹

31. As for modalities of his attendance at trial, should Mr Gbagbo be determined fit to stand trial, the Defence submits that it is 'absolutely necessary' that the hearings are held only in the afternoon and sessions divided into short periods of time.¹¹⁰ Based on the conclusion that under current conditions Mr Gbagbo's propensity to fatigue is based on a lack of social and relational stimuli, the Defence suggests that hearings are organised so that in the middle of the week Mr Gbagbo may have one day to receive visits from family and friends.¹¹¹ Finally, the Defence argues that opportunities for the Accused to get fresh air, as well as regular rest, would be beneficial.¹¹²

V. Applicable law

32. Pursuant to Article 64(6)(a) of the Statute, and Rule 135 of the Rules, the Chamber must satisfy itself that the accused understands the nature of the charges against him. This assessment necessarily includes a determination not only that the accused understands the nature of charges, but also has the capacity to exercise his procedural rights, including with the assistance of his counsel, as enumerated under Article 67(1) of the Statute.

33. In this regard, the Chamber fully endorses the statement made by Pre-Trial Chamber I that:

[T]he concept of fitness to stand trial must be viewed as an aspect of the broader notion of fair trial. It is rooted in the idea that whenever the accused is, for reasons of ill health, unable to meaningfully exercise his or her procedural rights, the trial cannot be fair and criminal proceedings must be adjourned until the obstacle ceases to exist. In this sense, fitness to stand trial can be defined as absence of such medical conditions which would prevent the accused from being able to meaningfully exercise his or her fair trial rights.¹¹³

34. The Chamber also endorses the Pre-Trial Chamber's observation that 'meaningful exercise of one's fair trial rights does not require that the person be able to exercise them as "if he or she were trained as a lawyer or judicial officer"',¹¹⁴ and notes relevant jurisprudence from the Appeals Chamber of the ICTY in Strugar that that:

An accused represented by counsel cannot be expected to have the same understanding of the material related to the case as a qualified and experienced lawyer. Even persons in good physical and mental health, but without advanced legal education and relevant skills, require considerable legal assistance, especially in case of such complex legal and factual nature as in those brought before the Tribunal.¹¹⁵

35. As a recalled previously,¹¹⁶ to ascertain fitness to stand trial, an accused must have the capacity to: (i) understand the purpose, including the consequences of the proceedings; (ii) understand the course of the proceedings, including the nature and significance of pleading to the charges; (iii) understand the evidence; (iv) testify or give an unsworn statement (should the accused so choose); and (v) instruct counsel in the preparation and conduct of his defence.¹¹⁷

36. Having enumerated the various capacities an accused must possess in order for the Chamber to satisfy itself that he can meaningfully participate in the trial – to such a degree that he has an understanding of the essentials of the proceedings, and in such way that it allows him to effectively exercise his fair trial rights¹¹⁸ – the Chamber is guided by the notion that:

An accused's ability to participate in his trial should be assessed by looking at whether his capacities are, "viewed overall and in a reasonable and [common sense] manner, at such a level that it is possible for [him or her] to participate in the proceedings (in some cases with assistance) and sufficiently exercise the identified rights. [...] Effective participation requires a "broad understanding" of the trial process with a comprehension of the "general thrust" of what is said in court.¹¹⁹

VI. Analysis

A. Mr Gbagbo's fitness to stand trial

37. On 2 November 2012, the Pre-Trial Chamber found that Mr Gbagbo was physically and mentally fit to take part in the proceedings before the Court, but determined that his health required heightened attention.¹²⁰ Having considered the Experts Reports received on 29 October 2015; having heard on 12 and 19 November 2015 the testimony of the Appointed Experts in relation to the methodologies they used and the findings in their reports; and, having heard the submissions of the parties and participants on 19 November 2015; this Chamber is satisfied that, for the reasons set out below, Mr Gbagbo possesses the requisite capacities to meaningfully participate in the trial proceedings.¹²¹

38. As set out below, the Chamber finds that all three of the Chamber's Appointed Experts unanimously conclude that Mr Gbagbo is physically and mentally able to attend and follow the trial proceedings.¹²² All three Appointed Experts conclude that Mr Gbagbo has the cognitive capacity to understand the nature, cause and consequence of the charges¹²³ and the details of the evidence.¹²⁴ All three find Mr Gbagbo has the requisite capacities necessary to communicate with and instruct his counsel,¹²⁵ and testify or make an unsworn statement on his behalf, should he so choose.¹²⁶ In fact, both experts who previously examined Mr Gbagbo in the context of earlier proceedings conclude that Mr Gbagbo's state of health has significantly improved.¹²⁷

39. The Chamber has not been persuaded by submissions of the Gbagbo Defence calling into question the methodologies used by the Appointed Experts and the extent of their experience with court proceedings. The Chamber recalls the Appointed Experts' impeccable credentials and that each has extensive experience not only as a practitioner in his respective field, but also in providing expert testimony before various courts.¹²⁸ Further, the Chamber considers that the means by which each Appointed Expert conducted his assessment – in fulfilling his Court appointed mandate – is essentially within his professional discretion, within the confines, of course, of what is accepted practice in his respective field.¹²⁹ In relation to their experience with court proceedings, each Appointed Expert demonstrated, both in his report as well as in his testimony in court, to be exceedingly familiar with legal proceedings in general,¹³⁰ and sufficiently familiar with these proceedings, in particular.¹³¹ Finally, the Chamber finds no issue with the fact that Dr Ludes and Dr Lamothe conducted their examinations concurrently, considering that the Chamber itself directed the Appointed Experts to consult one another 'to the extent possible';¹³² the experts regarded this approach to be more efficient for the purposes their examination and for the patient himself;¹³³ and both experts noted that Mr Gbagbo himself did not object.¹³⁴ In sum, the Chamber finds that the Appointed Experts are credible, that the methodologies they used were appropriate, and therefore finds that the conclusions of the Appointed Experts may be relied on for the purposes for which the experts were appointed.

40. In respect of Mr Gbagbo's ability to follow and understand the nature of the proceedings and the evidence, and to understand the consequences of the proceedings, all three Appointed Experts unanimously concluded that Mr Gbagbo is physically and mentally able to attend and follow the trial proceedings.¹³⁵ In particular, the Appointed Experts indicate that: '[h]is ability to reason and make his own judgment is unimpaired;'¹³⁶ and that '[results of the tests and clinical observation] showed efficient intellectual and cognitive abilities with very good abstract thinking and understanding.'¹³⁷ Mr Dumez further remarked that 'Mr Gbagbo possesses psychological resources that allow him not only to understand the proceedings brought against him and the elements of the charges to which he must respond but also to put forward, in an appropriate manner, his subjective position by participating actively in his trial.¹³⁸ He testified that 'Mr Gbagbo is perfectly capable of understanding, analysing, putting things in perspective, relating everything to his own personal experience when it comes to all the aspects of the trial.'¹³⁹

41. In respect of Mr Gbagbo's capacity to instruct counsel in the preparation and conduct of his defence, all three Appointed Experts conclude that Mr Gbagbo is fully able to express himself, exchange with counsel and prepare for and conduct his defence.¹⁴⁰ Mr Dumez reported that '[a] thorough examination of [Mr Gbagbo's] intellectual efficiency showed that it has not changed: his levels of expression, understanding and abstract thinking were perfectly correct and within the normal ranges, showing no signs of having weakened or suffered pathological deterioration.'¹⁴¹ It was reported that he 'expresses himself fluently and appropriately'¹⁴² and that 'he appeared capable of orientating himself and expressing, in an appropriate, balanced and willing manner, his personal position on any fact that was put to him.'¹⁴³ Mr Dumez also observed that '[t]he basic psychological functions governing relationships and communication were in place.'¹⁴⁴ Dr Lamothe noted that Mr Gbagbo 'eloquently link[ed] together historical associations, recent geopolitical contexts and his own memories and experiences as Head of State.'¹⁴⁵

42. Finally, the Appointed Experts underline vast improvement in Mr Gbagbo's state of health.¹⁴⁶ The Expert Reports demonstrate that Mr Gbagbo no longer suffers from clinical post-traumatic stress syndrome or hospitalisation syndrome.¹⁴⁷ Dr Lamothe observed that '[Mr Gbagbo's] current state of health appears to have improved since the 2012 examination in terms of his alertness, his general physical condition and his ability to express himself and handle an interview. [N]o significant impairment of his cognitive abilities or executive functions is apparent.'¹⁴⁸ Notably, Mr Dumez testified that he had been 'quite surprised to find out that Mr Gbagbo had recovered practically all of his intellectual functions.'¹⁴⁹

43. In light of the above, the Chamber is satisfied that Mr Gbagbo has the requisite capacities to exercise his procedural rights as enumerated under Article 67(1) of the Statute. The Chamber confirms that Mr Gbagbo is fit to stand trial. On this basis, the Chamber proceeds with preparation for trial in accordance with Rule 132 of the Rules.¹⁵⁰ necessary in order to facilitate Mr Gbagbo's attendance in court proceedings.¹⁵¹ All of the Appointed Experts considered that the Court's standard sitting schedule – 5 days per week, with 1.5 hour sessions, for 4-5 week blocks¹⁵² – was adequate.¹⁵³

45. However, both Dr Lamothe and Mr Dumez observed that Mr Gbagbo has a propensity for fatigue which Dr Dumez associated partly with his age and with a 'lack of social stimuli [from] being in detention.'¹⁵⁴ In respect of this, the Defence suggests hearings are held only four days per week to allow Mr Gbagbo an opportunity to receive visitors,¹⁵⁵ and requests that sessions be held only in the afternoon.¹⁵⁶ In this regard, the Chamber notes that none of the Appointed Experts make either a pre-condition for his attendance. All of the Appointed Experts reported that providing for adequate rest periods would be sufficient to accommodate Mr Gbagbo.¹⁵⁷ Concerning Mr Dumez's suggestion that sessions be held 'plutôt l'après-midi',¹⁵⁸ the Chamber recalls that he later clarified that his recommendation was based on Mr Gbagbo's current rhythm of life in detention, which could change as a result of a regular Court schedule.¹⁵⁹ In light of the above, the Chamber does not find it necessary to hold hearings four days per week and only in the afternoon. However, the Registry is directed to ensure that the necessary facilities are in place to accommodate Mr Gbagbo's ability to rest between court sessions. In addition, Mr Gbagbo will be provided reasonable accommodation to be able to leave briefly during court sessions, as necessary.¹⁶⁰

In respect of the other requests made by the Defence in relation to Mr Gbagbo's health and the medical care,¹⁶¹ the Chamber considers that such matters are within the competence of the Registry.¹⁶² In this regard, however, the Chamber notes that two of the Appointed Experts reported that the ongoing medical care provided to Mr Gbagbo was 'perfectly adapted to his condition',¹⁶³ 'satisfactory',¹⁶⁴ and, subject to proper monitoring, 'appropriate'.¹⁶⁵ In this regard, the Chamber also notes the submissions of the Registry that the Court's facilities include a resident doctor and medical unit and that these services are provided both within the detention centre and are available during the proceedings.¹⁶⁶
